CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY.

Washington, May 31 (Special).-The Catholic University has at its very inception put itself into line with the great movement of "University extension," by instituting as a permanent feature of its work semiweekly free public lectures, given at an hour in the n that makes attendance at them convenient for that large proportion of the citizens of the capital city who are enrolled in the Government service. The popular courses for its first semester have covered wide range, including subjects so various as astronomy, archaeology, hagiography, the philosophy of history, Christian apologetics, international law, and the philosophical systems of Herbert Spencer, John mart Mill, and Arthur Schopenhauer.

During the last fortnight the subject of the Anatomy and Physiology of the Brain has been treated in a course of four popular lectures by Joseph T. O'Connor, M. D., Clinical Professor of Nervous Diseases in the New York Homoeopathic Medical College.

The Rev. A. Orban, S. S., librarian of the university,

The Rev. Joseph Graf, choir master and instructor in the Gregorian chant, a physicist of some attainments, has been giving considerable attention of late to the theory of radiant matter, as well as to recent advances in electrical experimentation. He has lectured recently at the Academy of the Holy Cross in Washington on Electricity and Electrical

The Right Rev. Leo Haid, D. D., the Vicar Apostolic of North Carolina, paid a short visit to the university ruring the present week. This prelate, who unites in his single person the dignities of a lienedictine Abbot and a Catholic Bishop, is a tail gentleman of a scholarly aspect and a courtly bearing, with a most fascinatingly musical voice, and a handsome black beard. He belongs to that lefty type of culture that rises entirely above national characteristics, and it would be impossible for the stranger to detect the slightest indication of his German extraction.

WHERE COMPROMISE IS IMPOSSIBLE.

The subject yesterday morning was "Truths for Which We stand." The text was: "The people which sat in darkness saw a great light,"—Matt. iv., 16, and after the introduction, which was occupied with affairs local and personal, the thought of the day was developed, as follows:

The Confession of Faith of this Church is in no sense a compromise, Where methods are concerned, compromises may be imperative; where truth is confession of Faith of this Church is in no sense a compromise are impossible. From list to last we have insisted on the boilest and clearest utterance of our belief, but a findamental article of our faith has been that the spaces of our ignorance are immeasurably vaster than the area on which light has failen. While no compromise was intended or made by those who founded this Church light has failen. While no compromise was intended or made by those who founded this Church light has failen.
